12. Have you supported and/or mentored any other women candidates? If so, please list: I've worked closely with Daisy Bonilla, a candidate in Arkansas, through Run for Something, as well as Kate Miya, who ran for Thornton City Council last year.
13. List your three main issues: In Congress, I will continue my commitment to the families I see every day in clinic, building on my work to lower health care costs, address the high cost of housing, combat climate change, protect a woman's right to choose, and stop Republicans from taking away Americans' right to vote. Because I understand how the healthcare system works from the inside, I'll bring a unique perspective to health care reform, and the fight to lower drug and insurance costs and expand access to quality care. I will be driven by the same values my parents taught me and my siblings — to work hard and always finish what you've started, and to jump in to help without being asked. I will fight to make loud the voices of Coloradans long ignored in Washington, particularly those of Brown, Black and Indigenous communities.
