Prior to their time in Congress, all five women have served our country in the military or the intelligence community. They took their experience and dedication to serving our country to the halls of Congress and during critical moments of partisan gridlock, demonstrated what it means to put service and country over partisan politics. Now, with a slim majority and difficult races ahead, they need our support. We must do everything we can to protect their seats this year. Please join us for an in-person reception to learn more about these remarkable women and their work in Washington, and to help support their critical races.
